ENCOME TAX RETURNS

(Reporting of Travel and Reimbursable Expenses)

There has been a good deal of interest in the recent announcements by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue on reporting of travel and reimbursable expenses on your U. S. Individual Income Tax returns. The new (1957) tax forms now provide a special line on page 1 (item 6 (a)) for these expenses. After first indicating that compliance would be expected, the Commissioner later stated that the taxpayer would not be expected to report line 6(a) information for 1957. However, he made it clear that the information would be expected and the requirement enforced for 1958. You may want to know how this affects you personally.

you are expected to add to your gross income any payments you receive for travel or per diem. You should then itemize the actual expenses and enter the total on line 6(a) on page 1 of Form 1040. The difference between actual expense and the amount you have received will thus be reflected as either additional taxable income or deduction from gross income in reaching your adjusted gross income. Any deduction here would not affect your right to take a standard deduction in lieu of itemizing your personal deductions on page 2 of the return.

In the case of many Organization personnel, security considerations have probably prevented itemized accounting. Coupled to this has been the practical aspect that refundancement seldom if ever resulted in added taxable compensation, and any excess available as a deduction has generally been negligible. So the result more often than not, we suspect, was an omission of this information. And seldom was this omission remarked by Internal Revenue. The picture has now changed.

While the crackdown is probably simed mainly at the high-expense-account employee in private industry, there is no doubt that Government employees fall within the technical requirements. Just how it will affect employees of this Organization is not yet clear. So far, the people in the Internal Revenue Service continue to understand out difficulties in providing itemized travel and other operational expenses. At the same time, they are not yet sure how much force they will be expected to exert. Congressional reaction may influence the situation too.

For the moment, it would seem desirable for everyone who can do so without undue risk to security to keep a fairly specific tax diary. Then if, at the end of the year, the information is required and can be safely provided, it will be accurate. In the meantime, every effort will be made to reach a firm understanding with the internal Revenue Service on the application of this requirement to the various classes of Organization personnel.
